PUBLIC UTILITIES DEPARTMENT
WATERSHED/WATER QUALITY
MANAGEMENT PLAN

Wasatch Front Regional Council

This plan addresses issues of water quality and land-use policy, regulation, and management within the Sandy City watershed area. For purposes of this plan, the City's watershed is defined generally as the canyons or surface sources from which the City, or its partnering water providers, draw water resources for culinary purposes. Specifically, this includes all lands located above existing and proposed culinary water diversion structures in Little Cottonwood Canyon, Bell Canyon, Middle and South Forks of Dry Creek Canyon, Rocky Mouth, Big Willow Canyon, and Little Willow Canyon. This plan also recognizes the City's interests in and significant use of Provo River watershed resources, including trans-basin diversions from the Duchesne and Weber Rivers, and reaffirms the City's extraterritorial authority related to Provo River water resource management and land use issues. In addition, the City watershed plan is designed to complement other water resource-related planning and conservation efforts of neighboring communities, Salt Lake County, and the State.
